

How to fix missing images/text in editorial cards

Conservation

Your dollars at work

Protecting habitat for migrating Sandhill Cranes and much more.

Read more »

Programs

Programs

Read more »

empty
editorial
card

A common issue we're seeing on the sites are editorial cards that are missing either an image, or a subtitle, or both. This is something we want to avoid for launch.

Editorial cards pull their images and text from the article or page they link to. So for instance, if you add a page called "Our Seas & Shores Work" to a 3x editorial card module, the system will populate the editorial card from the content of the page. The page title ("Our Seas & Shores Work") will appear as the title on the card. The page's "Subtitle" field will also appear in the editorial card. And the page's main hero image will automatically appear in the image slot.

So if the page you're adding to an editorial card section has its Title, Subtitle, and Hero Image populated, you won't need to do anything extra. But what if your "Our Seas & Shores Work" page doesn't have a subtitle, or a hero image? In that case, you need to populate the editorial card fields separately.

The title and subtitle for the editorial card are found on the "Editorial card fields" tab:

Main content *
Layout *
References *
Editorial card fields
Menu & URL path settings
URL redirects No redirects
Revision information New revision
Publishing & Scheduling options
Meta tags Using defaults

Editorial card fields

Editorial card title

Editorial card description

Save
Preview
View changes
Delete

And the editorial card image field is found on the "Layout" tab:

Main content *
Layout *
References *
Editorial card fields
Menu & URL path settings
URL redirects No redirects
Revision information New revision
Publishing & Scheduling options
Meta tags Using defaults

Layout

Hero Image

Click "Browse" to locate the file on your computer or in the site's File Library.

Hero letters color *

Dark

Light

Choose dark or light font styles which will applied to bottom text content visible on that image.

Editorial card image ←

Click "Browse" to locate the file on your computer or in the site's File Library.

These fields can also be used to override the title, subtitle, or image. For instance, if on the page itself you have a long subtitle that is too long for an editorial card, you can put a shortened version in the "Editorial card fields description" field and it will override it.

The same thing applies when adding a landing page to an editorial card

If the landing page you're linking to doesn't have a hero image or a subtitle, its editorial card will be sad and empty. Edit the landing page using the Edit tab and fill out the Editorial card fields there to fix it. See: Want to link to another landing page with an editorial card? Here's how to add an image to that editorial card for more instructions.